This seed corn storage house of Lowell L. Moffitt, Knightstown, Indiana, was formerly an old tool shed and, with very little expense, has been turned into an ideal seed corn house by Mr. Moffitt, who is a renter and cannot afford an expensive building. The seed house is 18 by 30 and has a capacity of 425 bushels of corn on racks. All of this seed was hand-picked before frost and immediately dried out by artificial heat, and first was kept in the stove all winter. It was all grown by Mr. Moffitt in his 56 acres of corn, five acres of which produced 125.53 bushels per acre in the five acre corn club. The corn is germinating 100%.	2 B&W negatives and 2 B&W photographs	Landscape shot of a man standing beside a seed storage house, which occupies the center of the frame. Large laying house and part of the 1000 bird flock of year old pullets on the poultry farm of Louis Straublin, North Vernon, Indiana. Louis has a 150 acre general farm, which he and his 14-year-old brother operate without help. Besides caring for his 3300 birds, Louis, who is 26, milks four cows daily. The two brothers have put up 20 tons of hay this year. He keeps about 1000 birds over the winter for eggs, which he markets in New York starting in August. His hens lay an average of 190 eggs per bird, and last year he made a labor income of $2.00 per bird. The laying house is cleaned every ten days.	1 B&W glass negative	Landscape shot of a metal brooder house, a circular structure that occupies the center of the frame. Fireplace in the scout room of the mounted troop at Jackson Twp., Tippecanoe County, Indiana, led by Rev. C.C. Pearce. The rocks in the fireplace were brought 107 miles by the troop, and each one has a meaning. The center rock (or geode, as the formation is called) stands for the scout master. The geodes on either side stand for the assistants, and the rocks in the lower part of the fireplace stand for the scouts. The hearth of twelve stones stands for the twelve scout laws. Marbles between the rocks indicate the games played. Mirrors indicate lakes visited, and the ruggedness of the rocks represents the hills and valleys traveled over. The light fixtures were made by the boys, as was nearly everything in the room, which was made possible by a donation of $1000 from Thomas Miller, a farmer near Lafayette, Indiana.	3 B&W negatives and 1 B&W photograph	Three unique shots of a fireplace. Modern Purdue tupe poultry house on the farm of August F. Fisher, Elberfeld, Indiana, built at a cost of $406 for material and $60 for labor. It is 20 by 50 feet and accommodates 300 White Leghorn hens. Last year, Mr. Fisher made a labor income of $3.66 per bird on the hens that he kept in this house. He also makes a specialty of early chicks for special broiler trade. He ships his eggs to New Jersey and receives, on an average, from five to ten cents per dozen more--after paying shipping expenses--than if he had sold the eggs at home.	1 B&W glass negative	Landscape shot of the side of a poultry house, which extends across the center of the frame.	1923-02	22
